Outreach
ARCUS Annual Meeting & Arctic Forum
Arctic Forum Focus: Tipping Points — The Arctic and Global Change
Dates: 13-15 May 2008
The 2008 Arctic Forum will include a diverse range of perspectives on the increasing pace and scale of observed environmental change in the Arctic and around the globe. Have we reached major tipping points in the arctic system?
ARCUS Annual Meeting and Arctic Forum sessions will explore tipping points over different scales of time and space, as well as potential consequences, opportunities, and policy and management response strategies.
The Arctic Forum will be made available via webcast.

Arctic Research Consortium of the United States
ARCUS is a non-profit corporation consisting of institutions organized and operated for educational, professional, or scientific purposes. To achieve its mission, ARCUS frequently provides support to workshops to facilitate discussion of important arctic research initiatives, produces workshop reports to publicize researcher recommendations for arctic science priorities, and assists the arctic research community with other publications and information distribution needs. Impacts of ARCUS Information and Outreach

- Increased understanding of arctic issues & activities
- Informed decision making
- Better information about science
- Broader community engagement
- Student and young investigator involvement

Community Science Planning

- Study of Environmental Arctic Change (SEARCH)
- NSF Arctic System Science (ARCSS) Program
- NSF Arctic Natural Sciences—Bering Sea research coordination
- State of the Arctic Conference, March 2010
- National Park Service—Inventory and Monitoring Program and Alaska Park Science Symposium
- US Fish and Wildlife Service—Wildlife Response to Environmental Arctic Change (WildREACH)

Impacts of Arctic Community Science Planning

- Connections that improve arctic science
- Broad and interdisciplinary involvement
- Contribution to institutional memory
- Focus on community review

Education

- PolarTREC
- Arctic Visiting Speakers Series
- Other activities as opportunities arise

Impacts of ARCUS Education Activities

- Arctic science information available for many audiences
- Students supported in their pursuit of scientific careers
- Development of scientific and technical workforce
